Her Royal Highness plays a prominent role in the national and international activities of the dynastic orders of the Royal House of Bourbon Two Sicilies, especially those that relate to charitable and humanitarian assistance of the Sacred Military Constantinian Order of Saint George, based in Naples and Rome, with several delegations, worldwide. The Princess is also active in other major charities, including UNICEF and the Red Cross, the Olave Baden-Powell Society, AMADE, the Association "Monaco Against Autism," Amitié sans Frontières, Prince Albert II Foundation and the Princess Grace Foundation. The Princess also supports important cultural and sports events and is actively involved in the struggle for the preservation of endangered animals, designing a new collaboration with the important foundation "Jacques Rougerie", sponsored by the Institut de France. The Princess is also President of the Friends of the Scientific Center of Monaco "CSM".

The Princess is an influential "patron of the arts", having served as Honorary Ambassador of "La Chambre Monegasque de la Mode" between 2012 and 2014 and she works with enthusiasm and perseverance to protect the arts and crafts of artisans in the South of Italy; especially those rare fields that create neckties, jewelry, leather goods, parfums, decorative arts and paintings with gold, using techniques handed down from generation to generation.

The Princess is also very active in her family business involving financial activities, and working in the fields of defense, aerospace, and homeland security. On March 3, 2016, the Princess received the prestigious Humanitarian Award from the UN Women for Peace Association, awarded to her for "her intense social activity on behalf of disadvantaged children." This association, founded in 2008, is responsible for supporting the projects and objectives of the United Nations that offer opportunities for women to participate in the construction of global peace, through social, cultural and educational programs.

The Italian newspaper, IL GIORNO (March 1st, 2017) describes Nurçe's work with these words:

"Tendenze moderne incorporate nella tradizione popolare Albanese e nel folklore mediterraneo. Tratti militari, tagli impalpabili, forme sofisticate, un raffinato tocco di ricami e merletti: questi alcuni degli elementi più originali degli abiti di Mirela Nurçe. Ha realizzato negli ultimi vent'anni numerose mostre di successo, anche in Italia, e ha collaborato con noti fotografi per trasformare in creazioni stilistiche i suoi concetti creativi. Ha vestito personaggi importanti tra cui Isabella Rossellini, e ha creato il fortunatissimo brand Tonni86".

(Translated: "Some of the most original details of Mirela Nurçe's designs incorporate military traits, impalpable cuts, sophisticated shapes, an elegant touch in embroidery and laces. Over the last 20 years, she has organized several successful exhibitions, in Italy as well, and has collaborated with famous photographers to transform her creative concepts into stylish creations. She has dressed important personalities such as Isabella Rossellini and created her impressive brand, Tonni86").
